

EXMOOR LINK FEDERATION QUIZ

Here is a story. All you have to do is find the different chocolates that are hidden within.

So I went out to town to get a telescope for myself. I went to the garage and got out my bike. But it turns out that my tyres had been punctured by next door's cat. We call him KitKat but his real name is Freddo. Well, no I can't ride my bike to town. So that idea has been turned into useless flake.

I set off up the village to the bus stop. Unexpectedly, the normal, little bus didn't show up. It was a double decker. I got on and made my way to the top. Finally, the bus stopped and we all came off. I was walking to the shop and I met with my friend. He said he was out for a run because he had eaten a lot of food and it felt like it had given his energy a boost. So I went to the shop and got my telescope and I couldn't really hear the shop-keeper because all he did was wispa because it disturbs the telescopes like a lion disturbs it's prey.

When I arrived home I wasn't allowed to set up my telescope until the evening because we were going out for a picnic. We went down to the river. The ripple of the curly-wurly river was so relaxing. When we got home I set up my telescope. It was quite hard and I got into a twix of a mix, but finally got it finished. When I was done I went outside and looked through my telescope and saw some magic stars. I looked a bit harder and then I saw Mars. I carried on for a bit more and I saw the Milky Way, my favorite galaxy. I then went to bed and dreamt about chocolate.
